

Mission Awareness Event: Model 3 Sample Invite List

This is a sample list of individuals and groups to consider inviting, with a focus on key areas of involvement (this list reflects a broader range of individuals, and is not limited to only the following groups and individuals.):

1. Community Leaders

- Local influencers or people who can amplify the mission within their networks and communities. (e.g., City council members, mayors, or local politicians, etc.)
- Leaders of local chapters of national organizations (e.g., Rotary Club, Lions Club, Junior League, etc.)
- Public Safety Agencies (e.g., fire dept, police dept, etc.)

2. Youth and Family Professionals

- Educators and administrators who can identify children and families needing support. (e.g., teachers, guidance/adjustment counselors, principals, etc.)
- Youth coaches who work with young individuals and can encourage participation in community-driven efforts. (e.g., school, club, community center)
- Social workers or counselors specializing in child welfare, mental health, or community well-being.

3. Healthcare and Nonprofit Professionals

- Medical professionals, including doctors, nurses, and mental health practitioners, who may have an interest in community outreach or youth support.
- Nonprofit workers with expertise in community-building, advocacy, or outreach who can provide strategic support or advice.
- Event planners, marketing experts, or PR professionals who can offer guidance on event promotion and future initiatives.

4. Media and Influencers

- Journalists, bloggers, or other members of the press who could raise awareness about the mission and share it with their audience.
- Local celebrities, social media influencers, or public figures who have a following and could help generate interest and support.

5. Philanthropists and Donors

- Individuals or organizations with the capacity to provide financial support, donations, or resources to help further the mission's goals.

6. Local Community Supporters

- Parents and caregivers who are involved in their children's development and education are committed to supporting the mission. (e.g., PTA members, youth group leaders, etc.)

EMPOWER

- Local business owners who might be interested in contributing to community initiatives, either through financial donations or in-kind support.
- Neighbors or residents of the local area who are curious about the mission and eager to learn more or contribute in some way.
